

Irene Schmoller - Irene has been a hospice volunteer for several years and always brings passion to the patient's home and family by reading to them, engaging them in conversation, playing music or sitting quietly with them. Whatever the need, Irene will definitely follow through in any way possible. Irene has been a long time resident of the Gila Valley and the owner of Cotton Clouds, a mail order yarn business. She also has mentored others starting their own small businesses. She is interested in the arts, local performances, living close to nature with gardening and the passive solar home built by her husband and she also stays informed politically both nationally and locally. Her knowledge of resources is amazing and her diversity in talents absolutely incredible. Irene is a very compassionate, giving person helping to make our community such a caring place.
